SPSI acquires Best Way Technologies

MILWAUKEE, WI... Systems & Programming Solutions, Inc. (SPSI), a full-service provider of IT solutions in Wisconsin and through out the US, is excited to announce the purchase of Best Way Technologies (BWT) of Chicago, Illinois.

With the addition of BWT to the SPSI family of companies, the SPSI Distribution Systems Division will merge support operations with Best Way Technologies, thus offering one of the industry's premier shipping software suites, ProShip®. The merger also gives SPSI the opportunity to double its systems engineering resources, enhance its development and integration teams, expand its direct customer base, and add new Channel Partners and OEMs.

"The SPSI and BWT team will provide a depth of software knowledge and engineering service second to none." says Jeff Goeters, CTO. "Our industry expertise combined with SPSI Distribution Systems, Infrastructure, Application and Staffing Services will allow our customers to increase productivity and competitiveness in this global economy without having to use an array of vendors."

SPSI, traditionally a systems integrator, is excited to make the move into Software Development. John Berg, Principal Partner of SPSI, notes, "That the value of the ProShip Software Suite is the "best of class", because ProShip is the most Carrier Compliant, software available... meaning ProShip not only offers more certified services from the major Carriers, but provides availability to new services much faster than anyone else."
